

SPEAKER ONE SHEET

James Hill

The AI Guy

James Hill, known as The AI Guy, builds the systems he talks about. He founded RizzDial, an AI sales automation and telecom platform built to handle 100,000+ calls a day, running with direct carrier access to AT&T, Verizon, and T-Mobile. He also founded MetaTechAi, which installs AI sales and marketing systems for service businesses that want results instead of theory. James runs the Evolving AI Hub, a free community of nearly 1,000 founders, and documents his work in public on YouTube (@thejameshill) and Instagram (@aiguyofficial). Based in Roanoke, Texas, he is now writing a forthcoming book. He speaks on automation, AI agents, and telecom calling, drawn straight from his own work.

Keynote topics

TALK 01

What to Automate First

Most teams automate the wrong process first and wonder why nothing changed. James walks through how he decides what to hand to AI and what to leave alone.

Ideal for: Founder events, sales kickoffs, agency conferences

TALK 02

AI Agents vs Fixed Workflows

Agents sound exciting until one makes the wrong call at the worst possible time. James breaks down when a fixed workflow beats an agent, and when it's the other way around.

Ideal for: Founder events, agency conferences, sales kickoffs

TALK 03

Keep a Human Approval Gate as You Scale

The more automation you add, the easier it is to lose track of what the system is doing on its own. James shares how he keeps a human approval gate in place as his systems scale.

Ideal for: Founder events, sales kickoffs, operations teams

TALK 04

Caller Reputation Is Not Optional

A call that looks like spam never gets answered, no matter how good the script is. James shares what running RizzDial on direct carrier access to AT&T, Verizon, and T-Mobile has taught him about caller reputation.

Ideal for: Telecom and contact center events, sales kickoffs
